

Review an arts event

I went to go see the Scissor Sisters on Friday 22nd July at Newmarket racecourses. I went with my mum, my best friend and her mum. We went to watch the horse racing before the performance. There were a lot of women dressed up but it was too cold to wear a dress and heels as it was outside. When Scissor Sisters started to play the audience were screaming and cheering. The lighting was really bright and a lot of colourful lights were used such as red, blue and other bright colours. The only problem with having a concert outside is when it rains you get soaked. ~~as~~ If you have an umbrella ~~and~~ and you put it up you restrict the view of others, which was very annoying. But I would defiantly recommend going to see Scissor Sisters perform. ~~The~~ Newmarket racecourses is an amazing place to watch an act perform. It is defiantly better to watch a performance when it isn't raining but you can't always tell if it is going to be raining or not. During the ~~performer~~ performance the lead vocalist Jake Shear had a costume change and he changed into this gold sparkly hoody jacket which sparkled when the lights shone on him. Ana Matronic, the other vocalist wore a blue dress. It sparkled in the light. The stage was pretty simple it just had the guitarist Del Marquis and the instrumentalist, Baby Daddy were at the back of the stage with Ana and Jake at the front. My favourite song was 'I don't feel like dancing' as it actually makes you want to dance.
